ONCE A SAIL, FOREVER A SEA BAG

FALL & WINTER 2023

Any day on the water is a good day.
Our bags are made of these days.

At Sea Bags, we believe that sails soak up sun, salt, smiles and adventure. Although we clean our sails before we make them into bags, our materials retain the essence of what they once were, where they've been and what they've done. It's this previous life that makes each bag different from any other bag.

RECYCLED/ SUSTAINABILITY

Since 1999, we've saved over 1.5M pounds of material from going into landfills.

At Sea Bags, “recycled” and “sustainable” are not afterthoughts. They are the cornerstones of our brand. We approach the concept of sustainability from an environmental and social point of view. We believe in sustaining our community through job creation. We believe in sustaining the oceans and waters that we call our playground. We take these responsibilities very seriously.

MADE IN MAINE/USA

We design, sew and source our products locally.

Our bags are designed and sewn in a building that hangs over the water. We're located on Custom House Wharf in the heart of Portland's working waterfront. Our materials come from Maine first, New England second and USA third. We use one of the last remaining thread manufacturers in the U.S. and one of a few rope manufacturers in New England and each sail is individually sourced from a network of sailors around the United States.

HANDMADE/ HANDCRAFTED

The thought, care and skill that goes into each bag is evident.

Every product is meticulously crafted by skilled Maine artisans. We carefully select and cut retired sails, taking into account unique stitching details, grommet holes and wear patterns. Every bag is as rugged as they come and each one is a little different from the next.
